CHARKOFF, or KHARKOFF (Government district. CHARKOFF), is a town on the rivers Charkoff, Netetsch and Lopan. A university town, with (1912) 238,000 inhabitants, of whom 16,500 are Jews, 3,600 Poles, 4,000 Germans and 2,000 of various denominations. Postal, telegraph and railways station. Trade in Charkoff is very great. Wool washing forms a considerable industry here, Petrenko's factory being one of the most important engaged in this branch in the whole of Russia. Charkoff possesses further the largest and most important locomotive engine building works in Russia. There are large depôts of agricultural machines and implements, Russian as well as foreign. Exports consist mostly of sugar, dry goods, iron, ironmongery, oil, seeds, tobacco, leather, wines and tea. Annual fairs: January 6, May 15 to June 15, August 30 to September 6. The largest fair lasts from the 6th to the 26th of January, and grain, cattle, wool, wool tissues, wine and sugar are sold. Distance from St. Petersburg 1,341, and from Moscow 731, versts. Here is a Commercial Exchange.

LIBAU (KURLAND), town and port on the Baltic, 143 miles S.W. of Riga, with about 100,000 inhabitants. Postal, telegraph, railway and steamboat stations.

There is a very considerable import and export trade, the navigation being open all the year round.

There is direct steamboat communication between Libau and Hull, Libau and London every week; Libau and Stettin every 10-14 days; Libau and Lübeck every week; Libau and Hamburg every week; Libau and Antwerp every 10-14 days; Libau and New York every second Tuesday; Libau and Halifax every second Tuesday; Libau-Windau and Riga twice every week (Tuesday and Friday); Libau-Reval and St. Petersburg every Saturday; Libau and Copenhagen every 7-10 days.

The exports consist chiefly of oats, rye, wheat, pulse, linseed, skins and hides and timber, and the imports chiefly herrings, coal and coke.

Lloyd's Agents, Helmsing & Grimm.

MOSCOW (population (Feb. 1912), 1,617,009), the ancient capital of the empire, is situated on the banks of the river Moskva, which flows into the Oka, and thus communicates with the Volga, but the Moskva is so shallow that navigation is attended with many difficulties.

Although Moscow is now but the second capital, it is the very centre of the trade and industry of Russia, forming a vast emporium for the interior. The city is in railway communication with all the principal towns in Russia.

Lloyd's Agent, J. Foulis-Munro, Bolschaia Ordynka, No. 7, Kv. 4.

NICOLAIEV, or NIKOLAYEW (Government district, CHERSON, from which it is 41 miles N.W.), is situated on the left bank of the river Bug, 68 miles north-east of Odessa, and is a place of considerable commercial importance. The population in 1908 was estimated at 105,000.

Within easy distance from the railway there are inexhaustible beds of coal, iron ore & manganese; kaolin, fire clay, ochre, venetian red, porcelain clay, alabaster, slate, rock salt, copper, silver and quicksilver have also been found. The principal business of this port is the exportation of grain and iron ore; also a small amount of sugar, wool &c. The export of iron ore during 1912 was distributed as follows: United Kingdom, 56,800 tons; Netherlands, 278,040 tons; Germany, 12,500 tons. Total, 347,340 tons. The export of grain during 1912 was 973,680 tons (wheat, 252,214 tons; barley, 518,009 tons; rye, 77,827 tons; oats, 74,744 tons; buckwheat, 15,539 tons.

The imports consist principally of iron and steel goods, machinery, cutlery, tools, currants, fire bricks, tiles &c. Hundreds of tons of merchandise are, however, annually brought by coasting steamers and barges from Odessa.

Grain and seed are shipped at Nicolaieff by weight, and not by measure (chetvert) as Odessa.

Lloyd's Agent, Arthur Deacon.

NOVOROSSISK, a rapidly rising port, situated on the Caucasian coast of the Black Sea, about 400 miles distant from Odessa on the one side and 200 from Batoum on the other. The Wladikavkaz Railway Company's system connects this port with Rostoff on the Don, Petrovsk on the Caspian Sea, Baku, via Derbent, and Tsaritzin on the Volga, as also with the general network of Russian and foreign railways. Population, nearly 42,000. It has a railway elevator, said to be the largest in the world. Principal exports are grain, wool, tobacco, potash and oilcakes (sunflower), petroleum products.

Lloyd's Agent, Oscar Geelmuyden.
Salvage Contractors. Port Authorities, the Commercial Agency of the Vladicaucase Railway Co. Ehrtmann & Geelmuyden and Wechsler & Andreis.

ODESSA (Province, KHERSON), town and port on the northern coast of the Black Sea; postal, telegraph and railway station. The population is about 650,000. This is the great entrepôt of Russian commerce on the Black Sea, and at the same time the most important shipping port of the empire. The prosperity of Odessa depends almost absolutely on the grain trade.

The consular district of Odessa is formed by the 10 governments of Southern Russia situated on or near the northern coast of the Black Sea. The governments are as follows:—Volhynia, Podolia, Bessarabia, Kherson, Taurida, Kharkov, Poltava, Kiev, Kursk and Tchernigov. The area of these governments is 211,496 square miles.

The exports during 1912 from Odessa chiefly consisted of grain (barley, 241,233 tons; maize, 245,850 tons; rye, 78,439 tons; wheat, 96,843 tons); beans, 1,690 tons; peas, 31,550 tons; oil-cake, 35,690 tons; sugar, 68 550 tons; flour, 26,750 tons; bran, 8,120 tons; timber, 98,1[illegible]0 tons; proof spirit, 5,604,432 gallons.

The imports consist principally of tea, chemicals, cotton (raw), fruit, iron and steel, colonial products, coprah &c.

By sea the Russian Steam Navigation & Trading Company maintain postal communication with Constantinople, the shores of the Black Sea, Sea of Marmora and the Mediterranean; communication with the Danube ports by the Russian Danube Steam Navigation Co. with the ports of the far East by the Volunteer Fleet, by the Russian Steam Navigation and Trading Co. and by the Russian Eastern Asiatic & Baltic Steam Navigation Co. Besides these, those which carry on a regular service are the Austrian Lloyd's; Florio Rubattino, every week; the French Messageries Company, every fortnight to Marseilles and London, the one by Smyrna and the other by the Piræus.

The total number of steam vessels in the foreign trade entered during 1912 was 719 of 1,450,952 tons.

Here is a Russo-British Chamber of Commerce, Pushkinestr. 11

Lloyd's Agent, E. G. Jacobs.

POTI (Caucasus; Government district, KUTAIS, from which it is 79 miles N.W.), postal, telegraph, railway (terminus to Tiflis and Baku, with a branch to Batoum) and steamboat station, is situated on the left bank of the southern branch of the river Rhion (ancient Phases), in the province of Mingrelia. The population is about 7,000.

A new inner harbour has been made lately, and foreign and Russian steamers are allowed to load and discharge cargoes in it.

The principal articles exported are manganese ore, maize and wood.

The industries of the district consist in the cultivation of cereals, the mining of manganese ore, which exists in large quantities, and the cutting of boxwood, walnut wood &c.

Imports practically nil, owing to high import duties.

ST. PETERSBURG is one of the finest cities in Europe as regards situation. Population within the radius of the city (1st January, 1913). 1,686,001, and in the suburbs, including Ohta, about 335,000. Distant 18 miles from Cronstadt, which is the advanced seaport of St. Petersburg.

In consequence of the development of the Russian railway system, the trade, which formerly found its principal outlet at St. Petersburg, has, to a considerable extent, been diverted to other Russian seaports in the Baltic, such as Reval, Libau and Riga, which are rapidly growing in importance, and which possess the superior advantage of opening earlier and freezing up later than their rival on the banks of the Neva. St. Petersburg, therefore, cannot be said to possess its former commercial importance, but efforts are being made by the Government to restore the trade to its former proportions.

SEVASTOPOL, town, fortress and port on the south-western shore of the Crimea, 48 miles S.W. of Simpheropol and 947 from Moscow, with 68,000 inhabitants; postal, telegraph, railway and steamship station.

The industry of the district consists of the growth of cereals; also on the south coast of the cultivation of the vine, fruits and tobacco.

The port of Sevastopol having been transformed into a naval station, it has now lost its importance as a commercial centre, the export of grain having ceased; the custom house still remains, and import trade is, and will continue to be, allowed.

The principal new channels destined by the Russian Government to receive the trade of Sevastopol are, Theodosia, on the south-east of the Crimea, Ghenichesk, on the Sea of Azov, Horly, Churum, and Skadovsk, in Dzharylgat Bay, and Eupatoria, on the west coast of the Crimea.

WINDAU, district town in the Government KURLAND, with a population of 18 to 20,000. It is situated on the Baltic Sea and has a commodious harbour with a depth of 25 to 40 feet. The imports consist principally of steam coals, cotton, machinery &c.; the exports consist almost entirely of wood, grain, linseed, flax, hemp, butter and oilcake. A grain elevator, said to be the largest in Russia, is situated here. There is also extensive cold storage for butter, game, poultry &c. Distance from St. Petersburg 894 and from Moscow 1,026 werst. The railway affords communication with Riga and Moscow. The total imports during 1911 were valued at £2,578,651 and the exports at £8,686,428.

FINLAND

THE Grand Duchy of Finland, though belonging to Russia, has a constitution of its own, and makes its own laws, subject to veto or revision of the committee for the affairs of Finland in St. Petersburg.

Agriculture, forestry and dairy farming are the chief resources of the Finlanders, and the produce of the country is generally nearly sufficient for their own maintenance, any deficiency in cereals being easily supplied by Russia. Most of the butter goes to England, and has much improved in quality of late. Forests cover about three-fifths of the country, besides which the interior lakes occupy immense tracts.

The total number of inhabitants in 1910 was estimated to be 3,120,264, almost all of the Lutheran religion.

The granite in the Kalajoki district is beginning to make itself known in Scotland, judging by the quantities exported. It is of a grey colour, and particularly fine grained. Considerable quantities are also sent to Russia annually.

The principal articles of export are wood, corn &c., paper-pulp, iron and steel, paper, butter, fish, tar; and the imports consist of corn &c., iron and steel, petroleum, coffee, sugar, cotton, fish, tobacco, coals, salt.

The total trade during 1911 was valued at: Exports, £13,392,857; Imports, £18,638,888.

PORTS OF FINLAND.—With regard to their commercial importance, the ports of Finland range as follows: Wiborg, Åbo, Helsingfors, Kotka, Björneborg, Uleåborg, Hangö, Nickolaistad (Wasa). The above are the eight principal ports. The commerce of the remainder is insignificant.

ÅBO (in Finnish, Turku), with a population of about 48,500, is situated on the river Aurajoki. Regular steamer communication with Stockholm, Hull and Lübeck is maintained during the winter months by means of a strong ice-breaker. Vessels drawing 20 feet can ascend within two miles of the town to the roadstead of Beckholmen, but the channel up to Abo is only 11 to 12 feet deep. There are good harbours in the neighbouring ports, viz., Raumo, Nystad, Tyko, Mathildedal and Dalsbruk.

Principal exports are timber, granite, grain, butter, paper, grass seed; and principal imports colonial produce, wines and spirits, cotton and cotton yarn, iron, iron ore and steel, coal and coke, sugar from Russia, tobacco and flour.

The total imports during 1912 were valued at £2,278,120, and the exports at £1,800,000.

BILLNÄS, one of the most important manufacturing districts in Finland, chiefly engaged in the woollen and iron industries and saw mills. Large quantities of English, German and Swedish iron (pig and cast) are imported by the iron works, and wool and cotton by the mills engaged in the cloth and weaving industry. Situated on the line between Abo, Karis and Helsingfors. Goods are shipped viâ Hangö.

BJÖRNEBORG (in Finnish, Pori), situated on the banks of the river Kumo, about 6 miles from the mouth of the river, with a population of about 16,900, is the most important place in Finland for the export of sawn wood goods; grain and butter are also exported in large quantities.

The imports consist of coffee, cereals, iron and steel (pig and sheet), all kinds of textile goods, salt, wine and spirits.

The town is connected by railway with Tammerfors, and thus with the general railway system of the country.

The new port of Björneborg, Mäntyluoto (since 1901), on the gulf of Bothnia, about 18 miles from the town, affords good and safe anchorage, and is free from ice up to January. The draft of water alongside the quays and in the channel is 15 to 22 feet.

HELSINGFORS (in Finnish, Helsinki) is the capital of Finland, with a population of about 172,000, and its harbour admits the largest vessels, having a depth of 40 feet at entrance and from 17 to 28 at Sörnäs and South harbour and 15 to 23 feet in the West harbour. The Hangö Railway connects Helsingfors and St. Petersburg with the port of HANGÖ. The harbour of Helsingfors is very large. The exports consist of timber, paper and paper pulp, textiles, machinery, joinery, dairy produce and game; and the imports of corn and flour, dry goods, iron (rails &c.), coffee, sugar, machinery, wine and spirits, petroleum, coal, ships and boats.

The navigation usually opens about the middle of April and closes about the end of the year. Line from Hull on Wednesdays (Messrs. John Good & Sons, agents).

Here is a Chamber of Commerce (Handelsföreningen). Secretary: A. V. Lindberg.

POLAND

COMPRISES the great plain which is bordered in the north by the Prussian Provinces of Western and Eastern Prussia Proper, in the east by the Russian Government Districts of Wilna, Grodno and Wolhynia, the frontier line being in most parts delineated by the rivers Bug and Niemen. In the south Poland is bordered by Austrian Galicia, the frontier line being partly marked by the river Vistula; in the west by the Prussian provinces of Silesia and Posen, the river Prosna partly forming the frontier line. The principal river of this richly-wooded kingdom is the Vistula, which in its course through Poland receives the waters of its tributaries, the rivers San, Wieprz, Pilica and Bug with its tributary Narew, and Bzura.

Poland is divided into ten Government districts, namely:—Warsaw, Piotrkow, Kalisz, Radom, Kielce, Lublin, Siedlce, Plock, Lomza and Suwalki, with an area of 49,018 square miles, and had a population of 11,138,700 in January, 1907.

Poland is one of the chief centres of the iron industry, especially the south-western part, viz., Radom, Kielce, and Petrokoff.

Wool fair at Warsaw in June and Hop fair in September each year.

CZENSTOCHOWA (Government district, PIOTRKOW), town on the left bank of the river Warta; 100,000 inhabitants; postal, telegraph and railway station, on the Warschau-Wiener railway and Herby-Kieltzer railway. Direct goods traffic with Russia without transhipment. Distance from Warsaw 216 wersts. Annual fairs: Monday after Palm Sunday, Wednesday after Whit Sunday, Mondays after the calendar days of Titus, Micheli and Luzia.

The monetary unit of Servia is the dinar, about 9½d. British and $·193 United States.

BELGRADE, the capital of the kingdom, population 100,000, situated on the Danube, at its confluence with the Save, is a considerable commercial and industrial centre. Nearly the whole Servian trade is concentrated here, and goods are re-shipped from here by boat or re-forwarded by rail over the country.

Here is a Hungarian Commercial Museum; also a Commercial Association (Trgovachko Oudroujenié).

SPAIN

THE area of the kingdom of Spain, including the Balearic Islands (1,935 square miles) and the Canary Isles (2,807 square miles) is 194,780 square miles.

The population of Spain, including above islands, according to the last census in 1910, was 19,503,068.

MINING.—The principal minerals exported are coal, lead, zinc, antimony, copper and iron ores, iron pyrites and manganese.

COPPER MINES. — The principal production of copper is carried on by the Rio Tinto Co. in the province of Huelva. There are also important copper mines in Seville, Murcia, Almeria, Oviedo, &c. &c.

LEAD MINES.—The lead mining industry is considered the most important in Spain, and the principal mines are in the provinces of Jaen and Almeria. There are also mines in the Balearic Islands, in Ciudad Real, in Granada, and several in various other provinces.

The principal mines for argentiferous lead are in Murcia, and others of importance in Ciudad Real, Badajoz, Almeria and Cordoba.

WINE EXPORT.—The export of wine is a very important trade in Spain.

The wines made at Jerez, commonly known as sherry, show a decrease in the general export.

The total export of wines during 1912 was 76,640,000 gallons, valued at Ptas. 114,100,000.

CORK EXPORT.—The export of cork is also a valuable industry. It is usually exported in the form of bottle corks, but also in boards to all the principal European countries.

The principal places of export for cork are S. Feliu de Guixols, Palafrugell, Palamos, Port-Bou, Seville, Barcelona, Cadiz, Valencia de Alcantara and Caceres.

The export and import trade of Spain during 1912 amounted to Pesetas 2,106,000,000.

AGUILAS, population in 1910, 15,971, a sea-port in the province of MURCIA, and terminus of the Great Southern of Spain Railway, is about 35 miles west of Cartagena. The railway constructed for the Great Southern of Spain Railway Co. Limited, of London, is in full working order from Baza and Lorca. The facilities thus afforded for transport of all products of the neighbouring districts very greatly increase trade at Aguilas, it being the best and nearest available port for the whole line from Murcia westwards. A new port for shipping ore has been constructed by the railway at Hornillo Bay, quite close to the town, and provides accommodation for steamers to load under tips in 45 feet of water. The bay is well sheltered, and the pier extends 500 feet into the centre of it. The mole and appliances are designed to load two steamers simultaneously. Imports consist of coal, patent fuel, cement, sugar mill plant, railway plant, deals and battens. Exports consist of iron ore (666,233 tons in 1912), and esparto (17,761 tons in 1912). Here is a Chamber of Commerce.

ALGECIRAS (CÁDIZ), situated on the opposite side of the bay to Gibraltar, whence it is distant 5 miles, has a population of about 19,715. A railway exists from here to Bobadilla, connecting the town with the main railway system. There is an excellent steamboat service between Algeciras and Gibraltar. The principal imports into Algeciras are coal, timber, iron, steel, turpentine and petroleum; and exports (chiefly cork and fruits) principally to England.

BARCELONA is an important port on the north-east, and the second town of Spain, with a safe and commodious harbour. The population is 560,000 (1910). There are eight railways that connect this town with France, Valencia, Madrid and the North of Spain, besides various local small towns near. The harbour is guarded by a fortress called Monjuich.

IMPORTS.—The following are the principal imports:—Coal and other fuel, bread-stuffs, seeds, vegetables, sugar, cocoa, coffee, wood, skins and hides, glassware, chemicals, linen and woollen goods, drugs and medicines, jute and cotton (raw) and cotton goods, fire-bricks, colors, marble, preserved provisions, ironware, railway material, machinery, dockyard materials and electric cables

EXPORTS.—The principal exports consist of wine, cigarette paper, aguardiente, olive oil, cereals, chocolate, almonds and nuts, raw tartar, gold and silver, soap, cotton goods, paper, barrels, boots and shoes &c.; but the sole articles of importance are wine and textiles, the greater part of these latter being sent to Cuba, whilst large quantities of the former are sent to Buenos Ayres and Trinidad.

SHIPPING.—Regular lines of steamers run between this port and the Balearic Islands, Buenos Ayres, Valencia, Malaga, Cadiz, Havannah, Lisbon, Cette, Marseilles, Rouen, Le Havre, Genoa, Hamburg, Morocco and Manila.

Regular lines of steamers under the British flag (belonging to Mac-Andrew & Co. London) run from various British and Continental ports, and lines of steamers under the Spanish flag run from Liverpool and London.

The total number of vessels in the foreign trade entered during 1912 was 1,665 of 2,434,650 tons.

Here is a Chamber of Commerce, a British Chamber of Commerce for Spain (Plaza Cataluña, 9), and a Chambre de Commerce Française.

Lloyd's Agents, MacAndrews & Co. Rambla del Centro, 26 pral.

BILBAO is a port and town of importance, and the capital of the province of Vizcaya. The population of the town was 92,514 (1910).

Its commercial prosperity must chiefly be ascribed to the richness of the iron ore mines. The iron ore exported during 1912 was 2,876,663 metric tons (Great Britain, 1,918,953 tons; Netherlands, 737,479 tons; Belgium, 61,997 tons; France, 150,354 tons; Germany, 7,880 tons). The import of coal during 1912 was 831,902 tons, of which 449,972 tons were from the United Kingdom.

The total number of vessels entered in the foreign trade during 1912 was 1,813, of 2,042,390 tons.

Lloyd's Agent, W. Ll. Dyer.

CADIZ, population (1910), 67,174, is an important seaport and fortified city of Southern Spain, capital of the province of same name.

There are some local industries, the principal one being the former Government tobacco manufactory, now under the management of the Compañia Arrendataria de Tabacos (or Tobacco Syndicate), which holds the Government tobacco monopoly for the whole of Spain. The Compañia Trasatlantica has a large dry dock and extensive works for repairing and overhauling their vessels.

The principal imports are coals, grain and staves, and the chief exports are sherry, salt, corks, tunny fish and canary seed.

The total number of vessels entered during 1912 was 2,873, of 2,171,759 tons.

CARTAGENA (MURCIA) has a good harbour. Population, 86,004. Portman (or Porman), a mining village about 11 miles east of this port, situated on a well-sheltered bay, is frequented by vessels of all kinds and sizes, partly for the discharge of coal and coke, and principally for the loading of cargoes of iron ore and part cargoes of lead. The export of iron ore from Cartagena in 1912 amounted to 451,624 tons, of which 166,572 tons were shipped to Great Britain; 27,014 tons of oranges and lemons were exported, chiefly to Germany. Porman is an independent port. Here is a Chamber of Commerce.

CASTRO-URDIALES (SANTANDER) is a sheltered port in the Bay of Biscay. An extensive breakwater is nearing completion, which will afford complete shelter to shipping. Population about 11,000 (including district).

Iron ore is the chief product of this district. The principal industry of the town is the export of tinned sardines and fireclay. Castro-Urdiales has railway communication with Santander and Bilbao. The total amount of iron ore exported during 1912 was 553,336 tons (United Kingdom 248,369 tons; Netherlands, 261,715 tons; France, 37,037 tons; Germany, 6,215 tons); 20,600 cases of sardines were exported during 1912, chiefly to Mexico (16,000 cases).

CORDOBA has a population of 65,160 (1910); it is the capital of the province, and situated on the railways from Madrid to Malaga and from Madrid to Seville, Córdoba to Portugal, and Córdoba to Cadiz. There are coal, iron, copper, silver-lead and blende mines in the district,also lead-smelting works on an extensive scale. The coal mines are almost entirely in the hands of one railway company and the Peñarroya Smelting Works, both undertakings being French. The most important group of silver-lead mines belongs to Anglo-Bilbao companies. The largest producer of blende is a Spanish company. Considerable activity is noticeable of late in taking up new mines in this and other districts. Córdoba is the centre of the largest olive growing district in the world. Here is a Chamber of Commerce.

CORUNNA, or La Coruña, is a safe and sheltered harbour, and the new docks are almost completed. Steamers up to 2,000 tons can now lie alongside the quays for loading and unloading. The population of the town and its suburbs is 57,943. The principal articles of export are lace, potatoes, bacon and ham, onions, also oxen, tinned provisions and sardines, the latter in ever decreasing numbers.

The imports consist chiefly of spirits, cocoa, coffee and metals. The port is a calling station for the steamers going to South America, Cuba and Mexico.

The following are the principal lines of steamers which call regularly: Pacific Steam Navigation Co. Houston Line, Nelson Line, Royal Mail S. P. Co., Hamburg-Amerika Linie, Hamburg Südamerikanische Dampfschiffahrts Gesellschaft, Norddeutscher Lloyd, French Transatlantic S.S. Co. Houlder Brothers, Lamport & Holt, Zuid Amerika Lijn, Anglo-Argentina Shipping Co. and La Trasatlantica Española, besides a large fleet of Spanish coasting steamers belonging to various companies trading from Barcelona, Seville, to the northern Spanish ports. There are also regular lines of steamers from Liverpool, viz.:—The "Serra" or "Tintoré" line, MacAndrews line and the "Arrotegui" line. A line of railway now connects this port with the rest of Spain and brings Coruña within easy access of Madrid—about 24 hours ordinary trains. The express trains make the journey in 20 hours. The total number of vessels entered during 1912 was 2,192 of 2,170,615 tons. This port is the principal station of the Corunna Salvage Company.

DENIA (ALICANTE) is a small town of 14,000 inhabitants, situated on the north side of CapeSt. Anthony, being the terminus of a narrow gauge railway running through Vergel, Oliva, Gandia, Jaraco and Tabernes to Carcagente, on the main line from Madrid to Valencia and Barcelona.

A new line is now being constructed from Dénia to Villajoyosa and thence as far as Alicante, thus linking up this part of the coast with Valencia.

Exports consist chiefly of raisins, peanuts, grapes, onions and almonds. Raisins are shipped from here in large quantities. A large part of last year's (1912) export of raisins (11,352 tons) went to Great Britain (8,550 tons), the remainder being divided between Canada, U.S. of America and the Baltic ports. Of the total produce of onions, 52,854 crates were shipped to the U. S. of America and Canada and 10,263 cases to the U. K. The total export of grapes (exclusively to English ports) was 14,990 barrels. The export of almonds amounted to 3 250 boxes, chiefly to Great Britain (2,150 boxes). Imports consist chiefly of timber from Portugal, lumber from France and the Spanish coast and coals from England.

EL FERROL (population of 26,257), a fortified town and port in the province of Coruña, and 11 miles only distant by sea. It is the main naval station and ship building dock yard of Spain, with one of the finest ports in the world. As a trading port it is not of much importance. There are two floating coal pontoons, and at the Government dock yard there is a magnificent dry dock for the use of the Spanish men-of-war, 126 mts. on blocks. There is also a new dry dock (184 mts.), built by Sir John Jackson Ltd. There are also some private building yards where repairs can be effected, and in case of need assistance of all kinds is rendered to merchant ships by the naval authorities and Government dock yard, dry dock included when empty. Good coaling port for vessels in distress and short of fuel. There are several lines of Spanish steamers from London, Liverpool, Anvers, Bordeaux and Bayonne, calling weekly at Ferrol. Here is a Chamber of Commerce.

GARRUCHA (ALMERIA), 6,337 inhabitants, is situated on the shore of the Mediterranean, at the head of a wide bay formed by Cape de Gata on the west and Cape Palas on the east, at about 50 miles E.N.E. of Almería, the capital of the province. The industries consist principally of mining, fishing and agriculture.

The mining industries of this district may be conveniently divided into four centres, viz.: The Cordillera of Almagrera, producing rich silver lead ores; the Herrerias, yielding native silver and argentiferous iron ore and manganiferous iron ore; Bedar, magnetic iron ore and hematite and Lucainena iron ore (shipped at Agua Amarga), and Sierra Cabrera, producing iron and lead ores.

There is a custom house licensed for the importation of all goods except colonial produce, textile fabrics, salt fish and petroleum, and for the exportation of every sort of merchandise without exception. The imports consist principally of coal, coke, and machinery (from England), lead ore and timber, and the exports chiefly of silver, lead and iron ore (452,350 tons in 1912) to the United Kingdom.

GIJON (province of OVIEDO), population 27,840, is the chief sea port of Asturias, and is the principal port of Spain for coastwise traffic. Immense coalfields, of an estimated area of 270,000 hectares, are near Gijon, but owing to want of railway accommodation only 4 to 5% are being worked. This drawback, however, will soon pass away, owing to the advanced state of several railways under construction connecting the coalfields with the new harbour. The output of coal was consumed by the native mills, works and factories, all except 620,212 tons, shipped from Gijon-Musel, 181,047 tons from Aviles, and 232,119 tons from San Esteban de Pravia to other Spanish ports.

The output of iron ore in the Asturias is considerable; the native works consume the whole, in addition to large quantities from Bilbao.

Musel Harbour, Gijon Bay, is now open, and is of special interest to British shipping, as it is a port of refuge as well as a mineral loading port capable of accommodating vessels of any tonnage or draught.

The "Neptune" line of Bremen steamers run from Antwerp to Gijon, touching at other ports on the coast, and Spanish lines trade regularly between here, Liverpool, Hamburg and Marseilles.

The principal imports are cocoa, cereals, coffee, iron and metal work, jute, machinery, sugar, soda, oils, petroleum, potash, superphosphates, timber, textiles, chemicals for glass works and pottery clay.

The principal exports are cider, apples, fish, meats (preserved), nuts (hazel), quicksilver and zinc (manufactured), sulphide of arsenic and iron ore. Here is a Chamber of Commerce.

JEREZ-DE-LA-FRONTERA (CADIZ) (population, 51,157) is well known throughout the world for its celebrated wines. It is situated about a league from the river Guadalete, which flows into the Bay of Cadiz at Puerto de Santa Maria, and at about two from the Atlantic Ocean. The only article of export is wine, of which Great Britain takes the greatest quantity. The sherry shipped during 1912 was 26,541 butts (9,582 butts to the United Kingdom). It has also a large inland trade in cereals. Here is a Chamber of Commerce.

The imports are few and unimportant.

MADRID, the capital of Spain, has a population of 571,539 (1910), according to the last published municipal statistics. It is the seat of the Government, parliament, and nearly all other official institutions of the kingdom. The commerce of Madrid, in proportion to its number of inhabitants, is insignificant, and the imports consist only of objects necessary to the personal use of the inhabitants. The industry of Madrid is also unimportant, and is likewise confined to supplying its population. It has a few factories for the manufacture of chocolate, carpets, engines, iron, chemical produce, beer &c.

Madrid is the central point of three important railway companies, viz. of the North Railway Company, the South Railway Company and the railway from Madrid to Ciudad-Real and Badajoz.

Here is a Chamber of Commerce, Industry and Navigation.

MALAGA, the capital of the province of the same name, is an important seaport in the Mediterranean, 65 miles E.N.E. from Gibraltar. The population is (1910) 133,045. The principal imports are raw cotton, sulphur and chemicals, codfish, coffee, coals, cereals, staves, guano, iron, &c., and the exports iron ore (32,500 metric tons in 1912), lead in bars (28,734 metric tons in 1912), argentiferous lead (10,133 metric tons in 1912), almonds, figs, oranges, lemons, raisins, olive oil (15,950 metric tons in 1912), wine (10,133 metric tons in 1912), and many kinds of fruit and vegetables. The raisins are mostly exported to the United States of America, and in smaller quantities to Great Britain and France; the wine chiefly to France; minerals and lead to England, iron ore to England, France, Holland and the United States; and oil to the Baltic. Here is a Chamber of Commerce.

SANLUCAR DE BARRAMEDA (CADIZ) (population 30,000), the port of which is Bonanza, with good harbour accommodation. The district around produces a large quantity of corn and grain of all sorts, which is consumed in the locality. Wine is also produced on a very large scale, and it is chiefly bought by the Jerez merchants to blend with their sherries. The wine of Sanlucar is termed "Manzanilla." The principal imports are coals from England, and chief exports are salt (to Newfoundland), empty casks (to England), wines, fruit and canary seed (to England and France).

SEVILLE, situated on the Guadalquiver, has a population of 155,366 (1910). More than 50 per cent. of the exports is composed of iron ore, lead and copper; the other articles of export are oranges, oil, olives, wine and cork, principally sent to Great Britain. The imports consist chiefly of coals, machinery, provisions and timber. This town has a railway connection with the capital and all the principal Spanish sea-ports and inland towns, and communication with all the Mediterranean ports, Marseilles and Genoa. There is a direct line of steamers, chiefly owned by Messrs. Andrews & Co. although sailing under the Spanish flag, running from here to London, Liverpool and Glasgow.

A large percentage of such articles as corks, olives, wine &c. which are exported to England, are only in transit for the United States.

The total number of vessels entered during 1912 was 1,332 of 1,518,695 tons. Here is a Chamber of Commerce.

ZARAGOZA, the capital of the province of the same name, has a population of 118,000, including suburbs. It is situated on the right bank of the river Ebro, in the centre of a fertile plain, and watered by the canal "Imperial de Aragon," which is an affluent of this river. Though the industry of Zaragoza has been chiefly agricultural, of late it is fast becoming an important commercial and industrial centre. It is the terminus of four railway lines, viz., from Madrid, Barcelona, Alsasu, San Sebastian - Irun and Cariñena y Utrillas (Minas) (Lower Aragon) (which is being extended to Valencia). Extensive trade is carried on with France, especially in wines. The British imports are received by sea viâ Bilbao and Barcelona, and by land viâ Irun, and consist of coals, woollen stuffs, Dundee goods, hardware, cutlery, preserves, perfumery, provisions and some machinery. The exports are chiefly wines, mineral ores, green fruit (apples, pears, peaches and grapes), preserves and canned goods (tomatoes, pimentoes, peaches and pears). Here is a Chamber of Commerce.

BALEARIC ISLES

MINORCA.

MAHON, OR PORT MAHON (population, 19,722), is a town on the island of Minorca, of which it is the capital. The principal occupation of the population is the manufacture of boots and shoes for exportation to Spain, Mexico and Cuba, and of silver purses for exportation all over the world. Lobsters and other shellfish are also largely exported. Here is a coal depôt for the supply of the Spanish Navy. Here is a Chamber of Commerce, also an Agricultural Chamber.

CANARY ISLANDS

THE Canary Islands are a group off the West African coast, lying almost entirely between latitude 28° and 29° north and longitude 13° and 18° west of Greenwich, with a population of 358,554 (1900); their total area is 2,807 square miles, of which only a small part can be cultivated on account of their rugged and mountainous nature, and consist of seven large islands and several small and uninhabited islands. The important islands are:—

TENERIFFE, pop. 138,008, area 919 square miles, the capital of which is Santa Cruz. It is the seat of government for the archipelago, and is also the residence of the foreign consuls.

British Vice-Consul at Orotava, T. M. Reid.
Lloyd's Agents at Teneriffe, Hamilton & Co. at Santa Cruz; Sub-Agent at Port Orotava, W. N. Reid.

GRAN CANARIA, pop. 127,471, area 634 square miles, of which Las Palmas is the capital. For names &c. see Las Palmas.

Lloyd's Agents (at Las Palmas), Blandy Brothers & Co.

LANZAROTE, pop. 17,546, area 380 square miles, capital Arrecife.

Lloyd's Agents, Morales & Diaz (at Arrecife).

LA PALMA, pop. 41,994, area 318 square miles.

British Vice-Consul, R. F. Millar.
Lloyd's Sub-Agent, R. F. Millar.

The lesser islands are:—FUERTEVENTURA, GOMERA, HIERRO, ROQUETE, ALEGRANZA, GRACIOSA, MONTANA CLARA and LOBOS.

The Canary Islands have acquired a great importance in late years as coaling centres for South Atlantic traffic. This tendency to coal in these islands has been greatly aided by the new harbour in Grand Canary. 1,347,036 tons of coal were supplied during 1912.

EXPORTS during 1912 of bananas were 2,723,455 crates (to the United Kingdom 1,526,640 crates); tomatoes, 1,166,136 bundles (to the United Kingdom 996,891 bundles); potatoes, 252,737 boxes (to the United Kingdom 211,862 boxes).

The principal articles of Export and Import to and from the Canary Islands during the year 1912 were as follows:—

LAS PALMAS (population 41,994) is the capital of the island of Grand Canary. It is an excellent harbour, and is the principal seaport from which goods are shipped. It is also the port of call for the African S.S. Co., the British & African Steam Shipping Co.'s vessels, the Union Castle Line Intermediate steamers—both carrying the British mails—and the Spanish Transatlantic Co., Messageries Maritimes, Transports Maritimes, Italian Co. La Veloce, Compañia de Navigacion é Industria, Norddeutscher, Woermann Line, DeutscheOstAfrika Line, Branch line of steamers (F. & W. Ritson), TurnbullMartin&Co.'s New ZealandLine, Bullard, King & Co.'s Line, Lamport & Holt, Royal Mail S. P. Co., Houlder Bros. & Co., James Knott's "Prince" Line, Wm. Millburn & Co., Pinillos Saenz & Co., N. Paquet & Co. (Marseilles), Fraissenet & Co., Gulf Line S.S. Co., J. P. Corry & Co., H. & W. Nelson, Pacific S. N. Co., Kosmos Co., A. Holland & Co., Pyman Brothers, Ocean S. S. Co. & others. The total number of vessels entered during 1912 was 6,548 of 15,170,948 tons.

IMPORTS.—The coal trade is entirely in British and German hands. Principal imports besides coal, American timber and Norwegian boxboards are cotton and woollen goods, manure, cereals and grain, liquors and machinery.

EXPORTS.—The principal articles of export from Las Palmas are bananas, tomatoes, potatoes, cochineal and wine, of which the greater part goes to Great Britain.

SANTA CRUZ DE TENERIFFE, the capital of Teneriffe, has a population of 38,419. It is chiefly known as a coaling station, and as such is growing in importance every year. The chief industries, apart from agriculture, are the manufacture of drawn linen work (calado work), wine and cigars. The principal exports of the Canary Islands are tomatoes, bananas and potatoes. The cultivation of tomatoes is the chief agricultural pursuit of the islands of Teneriffe, Palma and Gomera; and Grand Canary is the great banana-producing centre, though the plantations in Teneriffe are rapidly being extended. Teneriffe is also the principal island for the cultivation and export of potatoes.

There is regular steamship communication to and from Cadiz, Liverpool, Southampton, Plymouth London, Havre, Marseilles, Hamburg &c.

The total number of vessels entered during 1912 was 2,494 of 6,561,693 tons.

SWEDEN

THE kingdom of Sweden, consisting, besides several islands, of the eastern and greater part of the Scandinavian peninsula, extends from 55 deg. 20 min. 18 sec. to 69 deg. 3 min. 21 sec. north latitude, and from 10 deg. 40 min. to 23 deg. 39½ min. east longitude of Greenwich. The area of Sweden is somewhat larger than that of Norway, comprising about 172,000 British square miles; its greatest breadth is 266, and its greatest length 1,500 British miles and the coast line is about 2,500 kilomètres.

The population on the 31st December, 1910, was estimated to be 5,521,943.

The principal imports consist of cotton, brandy and spirits, fish, pork, manure, coffee, machines (tools and implements; not steam), iron (steel, rails, bar iron), oils, paper (all kinds), wood pulp, salt, molasses, grain, coals and coke, tallow, tar, wool, wine, textiles.

Exports consist principally of brandy and spirits, fish (salted or preserved, dried or smoked herrings), bacon, hides and skins (not furs; unprepared, all kinds), sheep, machines (tools and implements; not steam), iron (steel, pig and ballast iron, ingots, bloom and rough bars, bars, pieces of bars), iron wire in coils, sheets, drawn wire, nails (all kinds), copper, iron and zinc ore, cheese (all kinds), paper (all kinds), wood pulp, butter (natural), grain, tar, wood, matches, wool, textiles (cotton), wool, linen or hemp.

The manufacture of matches is a very considerable industry of the country. They are shipped principally to Great Britain and to Lubeck.

The manufacture of wood pulp is also an important industry, and one that is steadily increasing, the material being exported to all paper-making countries.

This country is very rich in minerals. The iron ores of Gellivaara are said to contain 70 per cent. of iron, while those of Kirunavaara and Luosavaara, which are said to be practically inexhaustible, require only to be quarried from the mountains. Railways are now open from Luleå to Gellivaara.

Other mineral substances worked are: Sulphate of copper, sulphate of iron, red ochre, alum and graphite.

GOTHENBURG (in Swedish, GÖTEBORG). Population 173,875 (31st December, 1912). Most conveniently situated for foreign trade, stands on the south bank of the river Göta, three miles from its mouth, lat. 57° 42′ 4″ N. long. 11° 57′ 45″ E. After Stockholm it has the most extensive commerce of any town in Sweden. There is a system of canals from here to Söderköping on the Baltic, and from thence viâ Norrköping and Lake Mälar to Stockholm, which is navigable by vessels not above 105 feet long, 22½ feet broad and 9½ feet deep; but is being enlarged to accommodate bigger vessels.

The Wilson line of steamers leave Hull every Saturday, and Grimsby every Thursday. For other communications by sea refer to heading "Steam Navigation Companies."

The principal articles of export consist of iron and steel, timber, grain, wood-pulp, matches, paper, dairy produce, plasterers' laths and turned wood goods, wild-berries, fish, wood, wool, hides and skins.

The imports comprise coal, coke, iron, machinery and implements, yarn, salt, rails, textiles and paper, oil, cheese, treacle, coffee, rice, petroleum, wool, cotton, bacon, hides, tobacco, sugar, oil-cake and manure (artificial).

The total number of vessels entered during 1912 was 3,590 of 2,043,358 tons.

Here is a Chamber of Commerce for the City of Gothenburg (Göteborgs Handelskammare).

GOTHLAND, or in Swedish, GOTLAND, has a population of about 55,250, and is the largest and most important island belonging to Sweden, and constitutes the province of Wisby, so denominated from the only town existing within its borders, situated on the west coast. The imports consist principally of manure, coals, coke, machinery, tools and colonial produce. The exports comprise timber of various kinds, lime, marble, eggs, butter, sugar, hay, barley, and other grain. The principal traffic is with the mainland of Sweden and the North German and Russian ports. The ports of Gothland are Wisby, Klintehamn, Slite, Kappelshamn, Fårösund, Ronehamn and Burgsvik. Regular steamer connection between Slite, Hangö, Copenhagen and Hull.

Lloyd's Agent, E. R. Cramér, Wisby.

For names see under WISBY.

GRANEFORS. Province of BLEKINGE. See VESTERÅS.

GRÄNGESBERG, province of KOPPARBERG. The centre of an important iron-mining district, ore being exported via Oxelösund by the Grängesbergs Gruf Aktiebolag, whose offices are at Stockholm.

MALMÖ, on the border of the Sound, opposite to, and about 16 miles distant from, Copenhagen, has a population of 90,454. It is a landing place in Sweden for the passenger trade from the Continent, and the town is also the terminus for the Grand Trunk line of State railways from Stockholm and the north of Sweden, Gothenburg, the Malmö-Ystad, the Malmö-Trelleborg, the Malmö-Genarp, the Malmö-Tomelilla and the Malmö-Limhamn railway lines. It is a place of transmission of the post to and from the Continent and England.

During the navigation, which generally is open the whole year round, there is five or six times a day communication with Copenhagen; and to Berlin and Hamburg, via Malmö-Trelleborg-Sassnitz, by direct postal trains, taking through passenger and goods wagons, on large twin-screw ferry-steamers. Steamship communication also to Lübeck and the central ports of Germany and the western ports of the Continent, besides once a week direct communication with Grimsby.

Exports.—Butter, corn, live stock and wood pulp.

Imports.—Coal, coke, coffee, cotton, feeding stuffs, grain, flour, seed, machinery, oils, salt, syrup and tobacco.

Lloyd's Agents, Frick & Frick, Gustaf Adolfs Torg. 4.

STOCKHOLM, the capital of Sweden, situated on Lake Mälar, had a population of 376,171 (January 1st, 1913).

The harbour can accommodate a large number of vessels.

Steamers leave London, Hull, Grangemouth, Liverpool, Newcastle, Rotterdam, Antwerp and French and Russian ports, Copenhagen, Lübeck, Stettin &c. for Stockholm weekly, except when the navigation is closed. The communication with the Finnish ports of Abo and Hangö is kept up throughout the year. The total number of vessels entered during 1911 was 22 sailing vessels of 1,979 tons and 246 steamships of 136,439 tons. For lists of Swedish steamship lines from this port to foreign ports see "Steam Navigation Companies."

The principal articles of import to Stockholm are wine and spirits, arrak, cognac, coals and coke, fish, grain, iron, building materials, oils, salt and colonial produce, textile goods &c.

The principal articles of export from Stockholm are:—Pig & other iron, steel, scrap metal, rags, oats, wood-tar, tar-oil, turpentine, wood-spirit, creosote and tar-graphite, dairy machinery, timber, petroleum-gas cooking stoves, raw hides and skins, waste products, telephones, wood pulp, eggs, ores (iron, lead and zinc), match-making and wood-working machinery and oil-engines, surgical and other instruments.

The General Export Association of Sweden (Sveriges Allmänna Exportförening), Vasagatan, 6 (John Hammar, managing director), a semi-official institution, founded for the purpose of affording its members increased opportunities of exporting their products by suitable arrangements in Sweden and abroad. The association (which is under the patronage of King Gustaf of Sweden and of which the Swedish Crown Prince is honorary president) numbers about 800 members, amongst whom are to be found the most prominent representatives of the various branches of Swedish industry and trade, and has been formed for the benefit of its own members, of whom it receives a small annual subscription. It does no business on its own account, nor, when acting as an intermediary between buyers and sellers, does it charge any commission or acceptany remuneration, the greater part of its expenses being defrayed by the State. The members acting on the committee of management receive no fees or other emoluments.

Here is a Chamber of Commerce (Stockholms Handelskammare).

Lloyd's Agents, A.-B Olson & Wright, Skeppsbron, 18
